

Process for producing polyamide

- The present invention relates to a process for the manufacture of polyamide of the type of those obtained by polycondensation from diacids and diamines and/or of the type
- 5 of those obtained by polycondensation from lactams and/or amino acids. The process is entirely suitable for the manufacture of polyhexamethylene adipamide.