ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present application provide a service access method and device, which is beneficial to implementing effective access of services, the method including: A first device determines the receiving condition of a first data packet transmitted through a first service path; and the first device determines, according to the receiving condition of the first data packet, whether the first service path is available.

FIG. 2