Toilet Bowl with Wheel-stool Compartment

ABSTRACT

An adjunct compartment is formed underneath any normal sitting style toilet bowl's front side. Wheel-stools are stored inside the compartment by default and pulled out for use. Feet are placed on top of a wheel-stool to facilitate defecation process with a posture similar to squatting. The toilet bowl with compartment and stools are interlocked once installed for use to become a new piece of toilet apparatus.

[Figure to be printed with the abstract: Fig. 2]