ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A game system includes a main controller that operates to: control the main display to display an image for providing the game; store a plurality of game conditions that define different conditions for playing the game; select one from among the stored game conditions in accordance with a result of a previous game; provide the game to the players under the selected game condition while controlling the main display to display a presentation image that is defined for the selected game condition; and provide an award to a player who wins the game.