

ABSTRACT

MANAGEMENT DEVICE AND MANAGEMENT METHOD

A management device includes a communication device and a control device. The communication device is configured to communicate with a moving object configured to transport a product from an upstream company to a downstream company. The control device is configured to calculate CO₂ emissions emitted by transportation of the product based on an amount of energy consumed by the moving object from a transportation start time point to a transportation completion time point of the product.

Selected Drawing: FIG. 4