ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

REVENUE ALLOCATION SYSTEM AND REVENUE ALLOCATION METHOD

The present invention stabilizes and expedites incomes of primary sector workers and thus supports transformation of the primary industry into the senary industry. An information processor configured as a revenue allocation system 100 includes a storage device 205 that manages information on transactions generated in commercial distribution of products produced by primary sector workers, the commercial distribution starting from the primary sector workers; and an arithmetic device 202 that executes predetermined purchase processing for ownership of a delivered product associated with a predetermined transaction in the commercial distribution, with a predetermined broker as a buyer, based on the information on the transactions, that calculates a difference in value between a credit held by the broker for a creditor of the transaction and the ownership obtained through the purchase processing, and that executes predetermined payment processing for an amount corresponding to the difference.

FIG. 2