

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a surface treatment liquid that can form an organic film sufficiently excellent in adhesive properties between metal and resin and is also excellent in chemical resistance properties, the surface treatment liquid being excellent in storage stability. The present invention relates to a metal surface treatment liquid for forming an organic film on a metal surface, wherein the surface treatment liquid contains a silane coupling agent and an acid and has a pH of 1.9 or less.