

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the invention relate to symmetric encryption that converts plain text to Diophantine equations, i.e. cipher text, and communication of the Diophantine equations by electromagnetic, mechanical and/or matter waves or signals. More particularly, at least one wave characteristic of electromagnetic, mechanical and/or matter waves or signals are utilised to define the Diophantine equations.

Figure 3B