Abstract

The present invention relates to methods for the production of conditioned blood compositions which comprise induced factors, and to conditioned blood compositions preparable by the method and to the use thereof for the treatment or prevention of a disorder of the human or animal body.