

Abstract

A statistical data generation method includes: collecting inspection data including inspection result information regarding a package component manufactured by cutting a package substrate; and generating statistical data based on the collected inspection data.

5