

ABSTRACTPORTABLE BATTERY-POWERED DEVICES WITH BATTERY TESTERS

The present invention provides a handheld, battery-powered device, such as a torch, comprising a battery housing and a battery tester intimately associated with the housing, the tester having an externally visible display, wherein the tester is operable independently from the device, thereby avoiding problems with loss of the tester or continuous running.

---

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

