ABSTRACT

This invention has its objects to provide a wafer prober which is lightweight, excellent in thermal response kinetics and free from warpage upon pressing with a probe card, thus capable of effective protecting itself against damage to the silicon wafer and measurement error.

This invention is related to a wafer prober wherein a ceramic substrate is formed with a conductor layer on its surface.