

Abstract

In an ultrasound cutting device comprising an ultrasound transducer connected to a generator and provided with a sound conductor which is connected to a cutting blade and extends along a line which deviates from a straight line, the generator includes means for running the ultrasound waves in a controlled manner through a predetermined frequency range.