

ABSTRACT

Provided in one or more embodiments of the description are an information importing method and apparatus. The method may comprise: a server receiving an information importing file uploaded by a user, wherein the information importing file includes information to be imported into a system; the server verifying the information included in the information importing file; the server marking information in the information importing file that does not pass the verification, so as to generate an error comparison file; and the server returning the error comparison file to the user.