

Abstract

Fibre Treatment

A solvent-spun cellulose fibre having a reduced fibrillation tendency is provided by a process comprising 5 treating the fibre with a chemical reagent having two to six functional groups reactive with cellulose. Preferably the fibre has the same colour before and after the treatment, which is suitably carried out with the chemical reagent dissolved in an aqueous solution before or after the solvent-spun fibre is 10 first dried.

8601228-3