

ABSTRACT

In order that a substantially biologically degradable polymer is prevented from at least partially losing its biological degradability when reinforced by additives such as fibers and the like, it is proposed that natural fibers such as, in particular, sisal or ramie fibers, be used.