

Abstract

A method for producing a compound represented by formula (C) wherein R^1 represents an amino group protected with a protecting group, the method comprising a step of subjecting a compound represented by formula (B) wherein R^1 represents the same meaning as above, to intramolecular cyclization to convert the compound into the compound represented by formula (C).

