ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Control programs for a peripheral device to be installed, an identification program for identifying specifications of the peripheral device and a program for selecting the corresponding control program according to their identification are prepared and executed. Thus, since it is unnecessary to manage only the corresponding control program so as to be stored in a semiconductor device every specifications of the peripheral device, the fabrication of the semiconductor device is prevented from increasing in complexity.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

