This Sheet Has Been Replaced

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides an electronic cash register adaptable to change of output devices to be connected, comprising a memory means for storing information on output formats corresponding to the output devices, a model designating means for specifying the output device or devices connected, a search-reader for searching through the memory means according to model specification by the model designating means and reading information on an output format corresponding to the particular model designated and an output data editing means for editing output data according to the information read by the search-reader in response to an output demand and a predetermined editing rule.