[ABSTRACT]

Provided are substance and method enabling quick and easy detection of a sugar chain-recognizing molecule with high sensitivity in any place. Specifically, provided are: a membrane support for immunochromatography, the membrane support comprising a detection line on which a protein having the sugar chain binding thereto is immobilized; a device comprising the membrane support; and a method using these for detecting by immunochromatography a molecule capable of recognizing the sugar chain.