

ABSTRACT

Various embodiments concern a method for processing an address, the method comprising: obtaining, by at least one processor, the address; generating location data associated with the address; obtaining, based on the location data, at least one service report; determining, based on the at least one service report, whether the location data requires refinement; wherein in a positive determination that the location data requires refinement, generating an amended location data associated with the address.

FIG. 1