

ABSTRACT

A METHOD OF PREPAYMENT FOR ACCOUNT RECEIVABLE

The present invention relates to a prepayment method of an account receivable which is paid for sales of goods or provided services to a seller by a buyer and the prepayment method of the present invention includes: a seller information storing step of receiving and storing information on a seller from a buyer computer by an intermediary computer; a prepayment information storing step of storing information on a limit of a total amount to be prepaid and information of a seller's account possessed by the seller, by the intermediary computer, a prepayable account receivable information storing step of storing information on a prepayable account receivable, by the intermediary computer, a prepayment requesting step of selecting an account receivable to be prepaid by accessing the intermediary computer through the seller terminal, by the seller; an account receivable to be prepaid determining step; a prepayment step of depositing a prepaid amount into an account of the seller by the computer of the fund provider; and a prepayment step of depositing a prepaid amount into an account of the seller by the computer of the fund provider; and a prepayment notifying step of sending a message of the prepayment, by the intermediary computer.

Fig.1