

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED

ABSTRACT

An air handling unit comprising a framework of interconnected elongate frame members is described. The frame members take the form of pultruded sections in which fibres are embedded in resin, the fibres running parallel to each other and to the section longitudinal axis. Additional reinforcing fibres may be provided to define connection points, particularly for panels which close off the framework.