Abstract

The present invention relates to a method for the production of an influenza virus-based vaccine using permanent human amniocyte cells, as well as the use of a permanent human amniocyte cell for the production of a influenza virus-based vaccine.

Figure 1