

ABSTRACT

The embodiment of the disclosure provides a method, apparatus, device, storage medium and program product for presenting media content and. The method includes the following steps: presenting media content in a preset page, and displaying a predetermined identity list in an identity area of the predetermined page, wherein the predetermined page is a currently displayed media content presenting page, and the predetermined identity list comprises a first page identity corresponding to at least one media content presenting page; in response to a window displaying operation acting on the predetermined page, displaying a configuration window in the predetermined page, and keeping presenting the media content in the predetermined page, wherein the configuration window is set to configure the first page identity in the predetermined identity list.