

METHOD OF LOW TEMPERATURE IMPRINTING PROCESS WITH HIGH PATTERN TRANSFER YIELD

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to novel methods of imprinting substrate-supported or freestanding structures at low cost, with high pattern transfer yield, and using low processing temperature. Such methods overcome many of the above-described limitations of the prior art. Generally, such methods of the present invention employ a sacrificial layer of film.

[FIGURE 1.]