

ABSTRACT

A wig base and a wig in which false hairs are planted to the wig base are provided. The wig base includes a net region including a first mesh having an octagonal shape, and second meshes each having a substantially rectangular shape, the second meshes being connected to sides of the first mesh. The second meshes are disposed on the sides of the first mesh at predetermined distance.