

ABSTRACT

A process for the removal of water from evacuated chambers or from inert or reactive gases is described, both in static conditions and under flow, by using boron oxide obtained by boric acid decomposition under vacuum or under a dry gas flow.

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

