transmitters in particular cooperating with an advancing control.

14. Docking device according to claim 11, 12 or 13, characterized in that the plug connector (30) is operatively connected to an independent drive, in particular for advancing parallel to the horizontal advancing direction so that the plug connection can be produced independently, in particular during or after the connection of the coupling pieces (26, 28).