

ABSTRACT

Provided in the embodiments of the present invention are a mode switching method and device. The method comprises: calling a mode switching operation of a second network function, wherein parameters of the mode switching operation comprise first information, and the first information comprises a mode switching command, and the mode switching command is used for notifying a target party to perform the mode switching operation.

Figure 1 accompanies.