

DUAL CYLINDRICAL TARGET MAGNETRON WITH MULTIPLE ANODES

Abstract of the Disclosure

Two adjacent rotating cylindrical targets are used in a specific form of a vacuum sputtering system to deposit a film of material onto a substrate. Elongated anodes are provided on opposite sides and in between the 5 targets in a manner to make more uniform the rate of deposition across the substrate.