Abstract

The invention relates to the use of racemic α-lipoic acid or its enantiomers or pharmaceutically acceptable salts, amides, esters or thioesters thereof, in reduced or oxidized form, as active ingredient in the prevention or the acute or chronic treatment of migraine.