

ABSTRACT

Disclosed in the embodiments of the present disclosure are a video playing method and apparatus, and a device and a storage medium. The method comprises: detecting that a preset application program is switched from a non-background running state to a background running state during the process of playing a first video; continuing to play the first video in the background by means of the preset application program, and determining a second video from a second video candidate set according to historical operation information of the current user for the preset application program and a preset background video recommendation model; and when a preset video switching event is detected, playing the second video in the background by means of the preset application program.