

Abstract

GROWTH INHIBITOR

An object of the present invention is to provide an approach of removing non-endocrine unintended cells coexisting with insulin-secreting cells obtained by the differentiation. The present invention relates to a method for producing an insulin-producing cell population, comprising the step of treating an insulin-producing cell population obtained by the differentiation from pluripotent stem cells with a PLK inhibitor.

[No figure]