

ABSTRACT

A method for processing uplink transmission includes: in response to uplink transmission of a first priority and uplink transmission of a second priority overlapping in a time domain, determining a target time point, wherein the first priority is higher than the second priority; and cancelling the uplink transmission of the second priority after the target time point, wherein the target time point is determined at least partially according to an available time domain position of the uplink transmission of the first priority.

Figure 3