ABSTRACT

AN EFFICIENT LIQUID CRYSTAL DISPLAY DRIVING SCHEME USING ORTHOGONAL BLOCK-CIRCULANT MATRIX

The invention relates to a protocol for driving a liquid crystal display, in which a row (common) matrix is made up of orthogonal block-circulant matrices which can be generated by nonlinear programming or alternatively by paraunitary matricing.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

