

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present application provide a video generation method and apparatus, an electronic device, and a computer storage medium. The method comprises: extracting face shape information and head posture information from each face images; obtaining facial expression information according to audio clips corresponding to each face images; obtaining face key point information of each face images according to the facial expression information, the face shape information, and the head posture information; performing, according to the face key point information, completion processing on a pre-obtained face image to obtain each frame of generated images; and generating a target video according to each frame of generated images.

[FIG. 1]