

ABSTRACT

Technology related to nursing care support is improved. A care management support method to be executed by an information processing
5 apparatus includes acquiring a schedule of care for a person requiring nursing care for whom a predetermined level of nursing care is set, acquiring performance information on care for the person requiring nursing care, and presenting a suggestion for the person requiring nursing care based on information on the predetermined level of nursing care, the schedule, and the 10 performance information on care.