ABSTRACT

A sleeping apparatus includes: a sleeping base; a drive mechanism that lifts and lowers the sleeping base; a control unit that controls the drive mechanism; and a notification unit that notifies notification information, based on an instruction transmitted from the control unit. The control unit causes the notification unit to notify the notification information having patterns which are different depending on height of the sleeping base from a floor.