[ABSTRACT]

A method of manufacturing a mask blank according to the invention manufactures a mask blank in which a mask layer containing silicon is stacked on a transparent substrate. In the method, the mask layer is formed by sputtering using a target containing a dopant reducing a specific resistance.