

Abstract

Process for the catalyzed reaction of an organic compound with a hydroperoxide in at least one reactor using at least two different zeolite catalysts, wherein at least two of the different zeolite catalysts are used physically separately from one another.