ABSTRACT

A method for connection establishment, performed by a relay device, includes: in response to receiving connection-related information from a remote device, determining a reason for performing a connection establishment or a connection resumption with a base station by the relay device according to the connection-related information, in which the connection-related information is configured to indicate a connection request of the remote device.

FIG.1