

Abstract

- 5 A pasty molding material is divided by a process wherein, for the division, the pasty molding material is brought into contact with at least one stream containing at least one fluid medium.