

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a remote-controlled portable fire extinguisher, which emits a status message and/or the status of which can be retrieved, with the aid of a GSM signal. The present invention further relates to a method for remotely monitoring a portable fire extinguisher, wherein the portable fire extinguisher can be certified by means of a digital signature if ready for use.

[Fig. 1]