EXPANSION OF HAEMOPOIETIC PRECURSORS

The present invention relates the present invention relates to a method of transplanting haematopoietic precursor cells into a subject in need thereof which involves culturing the haematopoietic precursor cells in the presence of a population of cells enriched for STRO-1^{bright} cells. The method of the present invention is useful in the treatment of haematological disorders.

No suitable figure