What is Claimed is:

1. A system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules, for a user to conduct a baccarat game, the baccarat game comprising a banker and a player, the banker and the player obtaining respective poker card pattern according to the baccarat rules, the poker card pattern being selected from one of a plurality of poker card combinations, the baccarat game obtaining a game result according to the poker card pattern of the banker and the poker card pattern of the player, the system comprising:

a betting tabletop, the betting tabletop comprising five betting zones comprising respective payout odds defined according to the baccarat rules, the five betting zones respectively being BANKER, TIE, PLAYER, BANKER PAIR and PLAYER PAIR, the five betting zones respectively comprising a betting amount generated from a bet placed by the user, the betting tabletop generating a betting information according to the betting amounts of the five betting zones;

a dealing element, the dealing element comprising the banker and the player obtaining the respective poker card pattern after the user finishing the betting on the five betting zones to generate the game result;

a payout element, the payout element obtaining the betting information and the game result, , the payout element calculating and generating a payout score to pay the user according to the corresponding betting amount and the corresponding payout odds

while the five betting zones matching the game result; and a control element, the control element connected to the betting tabletop, the dealing element and the payout element, the control element sequentially performing steps of:

step S1: a determination procedure, determining whether the betting information satisfies an activation condition by the control element, and the control element generating an activation signal if the activation condition is satisfied, the activation condition being that at least one betting combination is satisfied; wherein the betting combination is selected from at least one of the five betting zones, and the betting combination is satisfied when the user betting all in on the at least one of the five betting zones in the betting combination;

step S2: an activation procedure, determining whether the game result satisfies an additional payout condition by the control element when the activation signal is presented, and the control element generating an additional payout signal if the additional payout condition is satisfied, wherein the additional payout condition is that apart from the at least one of the five betting zones of the betting combination satisfying the activation condition that matches the game result, the poker card pattern of the banker and the poker card pattern of the player constituting of the game result further matches a designated card pattern comprising an appearance probability; and

step S3: an additional payout procedure, notifying the payout element by the control element when the addition payout signal is presented, allowing the payout element additionally calculating and generating and additional payout score according to the betting amount of the betting zone corresponding to the game result and a designated payout odds which is predetermined, and the payout element paying the additional payout score to the user; wherein a value relationship between the designated payout odds and the appearance probability of the designated card pattern is a negative correlation.

2. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 1, wherein after the user finishing the betting and before the payout element generating the payout odds, the control element selecting at least one of the five betting zones and allowing the payout odds of the five betting zones that being selected to be replaced by a random odds.

3. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 2, wherein a time point at which the payout odds of the five betting zones that being selected to be replaced by the random odds is before the game result is generated.

4. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 2, wherein a time point at which the payout odds of the five betting zones that being selected to be replaced by the random odds is after the game result is generated.

5. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 1, wherein the betting tabletop further comprises at least one additional betting option, each of the additional betting option is activated according to a designated score with a different value which is paid by the user, and when there are multiple betting combinations in one activation condition, one of the betting combination is activated while one of the additional betting options corresponding to the betting combination is activated.

6. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 1, wherein the betting tabletop further comprises a prompt zone, and when the user places a bet, the control element in real time determines whether the betting information satisfies the activation condition, and in real time displays corresponding information in the prompt zone when the activation condition is satisfied.

7. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 1, wherein the betting tabletop, the dealing element, the payout element and the control element are integrated in a gaming machine.

8. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 7, wherein the gaming machine comprises a display operation interface, and the display operation interface is a touch screen for displaying the betting tabletop.

9. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 7, wherein the dealing element is a random number generating element and is integrated in the gaming machine.

10. The system providing a game of higher payout odds under baccarat rules of claim 1, wherein the dealing element is an automated dealing arm.