ABSTRACT

SOFTWARE FOR REPORTING QUANTITIES

Means for automated interrogation from time to time by included platform-independent software of any database carrying quantities (including but not limited to money) used in a business sharing the services of a financial institution (such as a manager, bank or factor); means for secure communications between the client and the institution, and means for reporting those quantities in a standardised, mutually comparable form are provided. Standardised reports are optionally forwarded to a different downstream services provider such as an accountant whose resulting analysis is securely communicated back to the business.

Figure 2